Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 33-42 and 50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schneier et al. (US 5,970,143) in view of Pease et al. (US 5,326,104).

Re claim 33, Schneier teaches a business process for creating a secure game contract over a network (figs. 3, 4a, and 8a-8b), comprising the steps of:

Art Unit: 3624

generating a game contract agreement, comprising the steps of determining a game contract rule set, determining a set of game expectations for one or more game contracting parties, and determining potential game contract outcome (col. 14, lines 46-67; col. 73, lines 32-63; figs. 10a-10b);

receiving initial game conditions for game contract generation from the one or more game contracting parties (col. 1, line 51 to col. 2, line 57);

carrying out game contract activity according to the game contract rule set such that the one or more game contracting parties act in a synchronized manner according to the game contract rule set and the set of game expectations (col. 5, lines 34-65);

generating a non-refutable game contract log detailing expected game contract transactions based on the game contract rule set, the set of game expectations, and the game initial conditions (col. 40, line 59 to col. 41, line 67).

However, Schneier does not explicitly teach verifying the game contract transactions as recorded in the game contract log by comparing the game contract transactions in the game contract log to the expected game contract transactions in the theoretical game contract log. On the other hand, Peaser discloses verifying the game contract transactions as recorded in the game contract log by comparing the game contract transactions in the game contract log to the expected game contract transactions in the theoretical game contract log (col. 4, lines 34-64; fig. 4 and abstract). Pease track all transactions to maintain verification of game contracts and players. He maintains player accounts using a double entry bookkeeping system. In that he checks the critical files at intervals to ensure that the control words are appropriate given the contents of the files.

Art Unit: 3624

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to enable a verification step wherein contract transactions are tracked to maintain original transactions versus expected transactions as discloses in Pease.

Re claim 34, Schneier teaches after the process is completed, financial transactions occur based upon the secure contract (col. 37, lines 43-59; figs. 18 and 20-21).

Re claim 35, Schneier teaches contract activities over the network are non-refutable (fig. 24).

Re claim 36, Schneier teaches one or more digital signature are used to provide non-refutable identification of the one or more contracting parties (fig. 1b). In other words, Schneier teaches digital signature by self-authentication.

Re claim 37, Schneier teaches activities are non-refutable by any of the one or more contracting parties to the secure contract (col. 40, lines 17-58). Schneier discloses secure contract by having a secure module containing dedicated game device for players (i.e. contracting parties).

Re claim 38, Schneier teaches activities are non-refutable by a supporting party with an interest in the secure contract (col. 7, lines 28-49).

Re claim 39, Schneier teaches activities are non-refutable by a supporting party providing recourse for improper contracts (fig. 4a).

Re claim 40, Schneier teaches contract rule set and initial conditions further comprises hidden events, which comprise random events generated by a trusted third party (col. 37, lines 13-43).

Art Unit: 3624

Re claim 41, Schneier teaches contract log further comprises simultaneous events, wherein simultaneous events are held, controlled and verified by a trusted third party (col. 73, lines 32-63; col. 37, lines 13-43).

Re claim 42, Schneier teaches any contracting or supporting party can provide recourse in the event of problems during creation of the secure contract (col. 48, lines 52-65).

Re claim 50, Schneier teaches carrying out game contract activity includes the step of using an irreversible transform to transact the game contract activity between the one or more game contracting parties (col. 47, lines 7-39). Schneier discloses unchanged or irreversible transform to transact between unique parties identification.
